

Perpetual Motion

By Sienna Morris

Sienna.Morris@Gmail.com

www.SiennaMorris.com

This series is drawn and shaded with only the numbers 1 -12, marking the hours of the clock. I call this technique, “Numberism”.

We're constantly moving in one of four directions. Even if we choose to do nothing at all, we are still moving through time. Every frame, there is a new “you”, fully formed in the present moment in time, built on our past and hoping for the future, but only truly existing in this moment.

These drawings are attempts to show just how fleeting these moments are, these moments that so quickly become our long kept memories, and things that despite how much we might like to, are moments we can never relive.

My hope is that when we look at these drawings, we will be reminded of the importance of now and take more advantage of it than we might have otherwise. To remember to live in the moment, and appreciate the present for what it is.